Whereas: The Legislature has directed that the second Friday in March of each year be observed as

and thus a new official sanction has been given to the beautiful and useful custom inaugurated here by proclamation in 1890,

Now, Therefore, I L Bradford Prince, Governor of New Mexico do proclaim and give Notice, that Friday, March 13th is set apart this year as Arbor Day, to be observed by the people in the planting of trees, for the benefit and adornment of public and private grounds, roads, streets and avenues, and in such other undertakings as are in harmony with the general character of such holiday In accordance with the newly enacted Law, I recommend and enjoin the due celebration of the day, on all our people. The day shall be a holiday in all public schools in New Mexico, and school officers and teachers are required to have it observed by the schools under their charge, by the planting of trees and other appropriate exercises..

I repeat the suggestion made a year ago, that trees be planted along all acequias, as this in a short time, will entirely change the appearance of our valleys, and also afford grateful shade and refreshment to man and beast.

Governor of New Mexico.

Memorandum filed with Certificate of Apportionment, March 21st 1891.

The duty imposed upon the Governor by Sections 2620 and 2621 of the Compiled Laws, on failure of the Legislature to apportion the Territory for Legislative purposes, is a difficult and delicate one, and in order to avoid any misconception, it seems proper to state the principles which have governed in making the apportionment now filed.

The United States Law provides for a Council of 12, and a House of Representatives of 24 members. The population of the Territory, as returned by the late Census, is 153,076, and the representative population, found by deducting the number of non-voting Indians, Soldiers &c, amounts to about 144,000. Each member of the Council therefore represents about 12,000 of representative population and each member of the House about 6,000 There would be no difficulty in making districts of exactly equal voting strength if it were not for County lines; but these cannot be disregarded, and no county can be divided in making a district. In some cases, such as San Miguel County, where the population is almost exactly 24,000, the division is easy, as it is obviously entitled to 2 Councilmen and 4 Representatives.

The same may be said of Santa Fe and Valencia, each of which is plainly entitled to one Councilman and two representatives. But in the case of the 4 Counties containing about 9000 each, a more difficult problem is presented, as each is entitled to one and a half members of the House and 3/4 of a member of the Council. In such cases, one member of the House has been apportioned to each County by itself, and the fractions grouped together to form a District for the election of another. In two cases, the population of a County is much too small even to entitle it to one representative; these being Sierra with 3635 inhabitants, and San Juan with but 1890. In such cases it was of course necessary to unite those Counties with others in order to make a district. As Lincoln, Chaves and Eddy Counties, comprising the old County of Lincoln, contain all together but 7003 people, they were necessarily grouped together in the apportionment of both Houses. The principle that every County having a sufficient population to entitle it to one member, is entitled to elect that member by itself, free from outside interference caused by grouping Counties together, has been adhered to wherever practicable; only the fractions being used, as a rule, in the formation of joint districts.

This ensures a fair representation to every section better than any other system, and provides fully for local independence in that representation.

San Juan County might have been attached to Bernalillo County instead of to Rio Arriba and Taos; but its political connection has always been with the latter, and it has at times been a part of each of those Counties. While it has not been united to Bernalillo in any way. So, also, Sierra County might have been grouped with either Socorro, Grant or Doña Ana, to form a district; and the populations of those three Counties is so equal, that there is no preference on that account. But apart from general propriety of its connect[illegible] arising from similarity of natural characteristics and greater geographical proximity, its union with either Grant or Doña Ana, would have left Socorro County with about 9000 inhabitants, so isolated that it would have been impracticable to give it proper representation without forcing an unnatural union of sections having no community of interest.

As some question exists as to the legality of the existence of Guadalupe County, I have fixed the representation of San Miguel County so as to be applicable in either event.

While absolute and precise equality is unattainable so long as Counties are the units in the problem, yet, so far as it has appeared possible, exact justice has been done to every locality in this apportionment. Probably no arrangement could be made that would not be a subject for complaint in some quarter, but it is believed that this apportionment now announced is less subject to just criticism than any other that could be devised.

Arbor Day Proclamation.
By the Governor.

Whereas; The Legislature, by the enactment of Chapter XXXV of the Laws of 1891, set apart the Second Friday in March of each year to be observed as Arbor Day and directed the Governor to call the attention of the people thereto by Proclamation; Now Therefore L. Bradford Prince, Governor of New Mexico, do proclaim that Friday, March 11, 1892 is to be celebrated as Arbor Day in this Territory, to be observed by the planting of trees for the benefit and adornment of public and private grounds and places, and in such other efforts and undertakings as shall be in harmony with the general character of the day so established.

The day as above designated shall be a holiday in all public schools of the Territory, and school officers and teachers are required to have the schools under their charge observe the day by the planting of trees or other appropriate exercises.

Provided, that in counties so situated that the day herein designated is not suitable on account of local climatic conditions, the public school observance may be held on such other day as is fixed by the County Superintendent of Schools.

I desire to repeat the recommendation made in former Arbor Day Proclamations, that trees be planted along the borders of all the Acequias throughout the Territory. The trouble and expense attending such planting is very small, and the ultimate advantage, both in beauty and utility, will be very great. Long lines of beautiful trees will embellish our valleys, and grateful shade will be afforded for both man and beast.

Columbus Day Proclamation.
By the Governor.

Whereas: the President of the United States by proclamation has appointed Friday, October 21, 1892, the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus, as a National Holiday, and has recommended its observance in the following appropriate methods;

"On that day let the people, as far as possible, devote themselves to such exercises as may express honor to the discoverer and their appreciation of the great achievements of the four centuries of American life.

Let the National flag float over over every school house in the county, and the exercises be such as shall impress upon our youth the patriotic duties of American citizenship. In the churches and in other places of assembly of the people, let there be expression of gratitude to Divine Providence for the devout faith of the discoverer, and for the divine care and guidance which has directed our history and so abundantly blessed our people," and

Whereas: the people of New Mexico have a special interest in this Anniversary, because they, more than those of any other portion of the country, represent the kingdoms of Castile and Leon under whose auspices the Voyage of discovery was made; their soil was trodden by the feet of the chivalrous and intrepid followers of Columbus within half a century of this great achievement, and the oldest of their Settlements date back to the same Era;

Therefore: I, L. Bradford Prince, Governor of New Mexico, do proclaim and recommend that Friday, October 21st.

All this we owe to the favor of Almighty God.

In canvassing the vote for Delegate to Congress there was no objection to any return, and although I find that some of the Poll-books defective in some particulars required law, but owing was taken to any return by any one, I take it for granted that the County Canvassing Boards had before them proper evidence to warrant the making of the abstracts as returned, and the intent of the several Canvassing Boards being apparent.

Mar. 9. Arbor Day Proclamation
By the Governor.

Chapter XXXV of the Laws of 1891, provides, that the second Friday in March of each year, shall be set apart as to be observed by the people of this Territory in the planting of forest trees for the benefit and adornment of public and private grounds, places and ways, and in such other efforts and undertakings as shall be in harmony with the general character of the day so established: Provided, That the actual planting of trees may be done on the day designated or at such other most convenient times as may best conform to local climatic conditions, such other times to be designated and due notice thereof given by the several county superintendents of schools for their respective counties.

Experience has shown that the day designated by law is generally too early for practical observance in most of the counties in the Territory. I therefore issue this proclamation to remind the county superintendents of schools of the necessity of appointing the days which may be most appropriate for the purpose in their respective counties, and to urge upon the people generally to make the occasion as practically useful as possible.

I wish to renew the recommendation that trees be planted along the lines of all the acequias in New Mexico. If each will do his part in this work, it will involve little trouble or expense; but in a few years it will entirely change the appearance of our country and not only beautify the valleys but add to the water supply by reducing the amount of evaporation and will afford a grateful shade and shelter for flocks and herds. In other irrigated countries such lines of shade trees along the acequias are universal, and we should follow the example without delay.
